Activities	I. Warm-up: Ask if the students know of any activities going on in their communities, school, or churches. Ask if they ever attend any events in the community. Discuss. II. Tell the students that today we will be learning about events that are planned for our area and how to find out about future events. III. Divide the students into small groups and pass out the newspapers, flyers, and advertisements. Have each group take one and find out the details (who, what, why, where, when, and cost) for one event. IV. Pass out the calendars to each student. Have each group tell the rest of the class about an event. The details can be written on the board. As each group finishes their presentation, have the students note the event on their calendars.
Assessment/ Evidence	Ask the students what events looked interesting and which ones they thought they would like to attend. Ask the students when and where each event would occur. Ask the students what each event was about.
Reflection	This was a fun lesson. It allowed the students to see how many things are occurring in the community and many for no or very low cost. It also led to a discussion on directions and map reading.
